

What feels like magic to you?

What's a lesson you keep having to learn over and over?

What was your form of rebelling as a teenager?

What's something your parents taught you to love?

What's a routine from your childhood that you miss?

Where would you go to feel safe as a kid?

What is proof that someone really knows you?

What's something you've had to unlearn?

What's been your greatest sacrifice?

What is a place you consider sacred?

Has your idea of what it means to live a good life changed?

Have your feelings about God or a divine power changed over time?

What's a belief you had to let go of?

Have you ever had a premonition about something that came true?

Is there anything in your life that has felt predestined?

Who has had the biggest influence on your life? What lessons did that person teach you?

What is your earliest memory?

If you had any advice for a younger version of yourself, what would it be?

If you could interview anyone, living or dead, but not a celebrity, who would it be?

What absolutely excites you right now?

How different is (or was) your day job from what you wanted to do as a kid?

What's the last time you failed spectacularly at something?

What music did you discover from your parents, or their record collection?

What is a smell that brings back a very strong memory for you?

Can you think of a product you loved so much that when it was discontinued you were so upset you contacted the company?

If you were a vending machine, what would you dispense?

What's a weird fact you only know because of your specific job?

What's your most vivid memory of a historical event that happened during your childhood?

What's the dumbest thing you ever asked your parents to buy for you as a kid?

What Olympic event would you do if you could do any (no previous experience or talent required)?

You're the organizer of a music festival. Pick any two headliners, living or dead.

What can you speak about, with no advance preparation, for thirty minutes?

As a child, what was your "third space" – the space you felt you belonged, that wasn't home or school?

What song would you like to be played at your funeral?

How would you explain your job to a five-year-old?

What's something you would not tell something about yourself on a first date?

What's one word you would use to describe yourself as a teenager?

Are you a soup, a salad or a sandwich today?

What's the most important thing you accidentally slept through?

If you went into the witness protection plan what identify would you choose to assume?

How did you get your name?	If you could rename yourself, what new name would you choose, and why?
What are you into now that you never thought you'd be into?	What was your first concert? How did you get there?
What's the most expensive taxi ride you ever took?	"What's the last move you have left?" (This is based on a Twyla Tharp observation: "One by one your moves leave you, until you only have one left.")
What's a challenge you're facing right now?	Using only food, where did you grow up?
Did you ever, as a kid, want to invent something?	What is your oldest and most cherished grudge?

What's something you didn't like but are glad happened?	Would you rather be able to speak all languages on earth or be able to play any instrument like a virtuoso?
Tell me something about yourself that I'd never guess from looking at you.	If you could do something you don't do because it's bad for you, but you knew you could do it with no repercussions, what would it be?
What random stranger from your life to you think about (or even talk about) regularly?	If you got arrested, what would your friends and family think you got arrested for?
If your life right now were a weather report, what would it be?	What's the hardest thing you've ever done?
Can you remember the first time you entered your elementary school at night rather than in the daytime?	What is your favourite compliment of all the compliments you have ever received?

If you could only speak by using the quotes/script from one movie, which movie would you choose?	Of all the people you admire, what qualities do they share?
What do you worry most about?	Your life in three pairs of jeans: Go.
Twenty-four hours to live: What do you do?	What's your one big idea?
Who's the smartest person you ever met?	Extreme marriage questions: If someone said, 'You have to have an open marriage, what would you do?' If another child miraculously arrived, what would we do? If you and your partner were forced to relocate to Siberia, what would you do?
What are some extreme questions we could ask in these walls, to build our congregation and built this faith?) e.g. 'What if we introduced a deity?'	